The experience of playing a computer game on your phone is wonderful, but the quality can vary greatly. Star Realms just hit Android yesterday, and we were invited to try it out. The game is an exact clone of the iOS version and runs flawlessly. The price is also dirt cheap. If you are familiar with the mobile game genre and Star Realms in particular, you know that it is a very casual game, especially if you are playing alone. If you want to play with friends, you can do so via real life friends, by playing in leagues, or via app itself. Star Realms is a two player game, but can have up to four players. The playing field is a grid with a size of 3x3, which means there is room for a maximum of 9 spots for the initial shard layout. Each player receives 2 shard tokens and a letter. The number of shards represents the difficulty of the challenge you want to play. The difficulty of the game is determined by the number of shards in the play area. Each new tile that is placed allows the players to place additional shards in a new spot, increasing the number of shards in the play area. If you want to play on the easiest setting, you can do so. It will be a simple shard rush with the hardest mode (maximum of 18 shards). There are about 9 different shard settings for most of the challenges and 2-3 options for each tile placement. The game itself has no dialog, but it does have a list of common combinations, indicating a win or a loss in the battle. This is done by the players by selecting their ship and shard, and then the enemy. The game looks great in both portrait and landscape mode, and also you can change the themes as you like. The setting is procedurally generated, meaning that the game could be set in almost any world the players are familiar with. Star Realms is set on an alien world, containing shard space, galactic regions, and most importantly, planets. The rules are made quite simple, giving the players, just like in mobile games, a couple of moves and a resource to make their choices. The first move is for the two players to divide the shard space in half. One player picks the destination planet to start on. The other player chooses an enemy base to attack. It is important to note that there is no limit to the number of bases you can attack. The first player to get a star and a planet in their starting area wins the game. While

Umbra: Journey Home (Umbra: Saivanaki kertoi, literally "Umbra: The Light Giver") is a Finnish drama film directed by Jalmari Helander and written by Mikko Hyppönen. The film is about the Tuvinen family—three generations on an extended stay at a family farm in a remote area in Northern Finland, in an isolated household, after the disappearance of their grandmother and cold war politics to Poland have forced them to return home. The Tuvinen family is subjected to growing temptation and longing, isolated from the outside world and reachable only by infrequent mail and phone calls, to the point of suicide, obsession, and depression. The fictional Tuvinen family explores the downside of a new lifestyle based on the preservation of a functional family unit, the generation gap, loneliness, isolation, and misunderstanding. The cast includes Helander, Nina Elmo, Anton Rajamäki, Pia Rauer-Häkkinen, Merja Karttunen, Eija Hannola, Mari Elita Hanski, Helsinki, Kirsi, Karl, Jussi Koistinen, Elena Heikkilä, Johanna Härmä, Roope Mokken, Mikko Paasi, and Tom Lea. The film was selected as the Finnish entry for the Best Foreign Language Film at the 76th Academy Awards, but was not accepted as a nominee. Plot The elderly Nanna Tuvinen (Nina Elmo) comes home to the isolated farm in northern Finland to care for her ailing sister who has Alzheimer's disease, and her grandchildren: boys Jesse (Pia Rauer-Häkkinen) and Kevin (Anton Rajamäki); and girls Lana (Merja Karttunen) and Zoe (Elena Heikkilä). The family's only neighbour is their elderly mother who is from a different country, whose children were sent to receive a portion of the family's farmland due to the Cold War and who died after a fall several years ago. On her deathbed, Nanna learns about the disappearance of her twin sister Lauri (Johanna Härmä). The family's denial of death is quickly tested when a mysterious young man (Mikko Paasi) moves in next door. The Tuvinens' home life and lives are further complicated by a girl visiting from abroad, Anna (Johanna Härmä),
